

INT. AIR FORCE BASE. Our PILOT in front of a mirror...

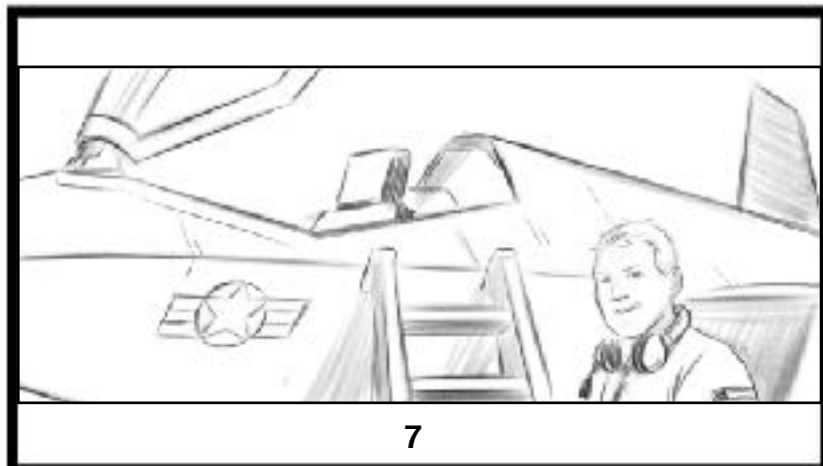

OUR PILOT is joined by a SECOND PILOT, walking toward a pair of F-35s under a brightly lit hangar – until we're joined by a MISSION COMMANDER, who briefs us directly on the task ahead.

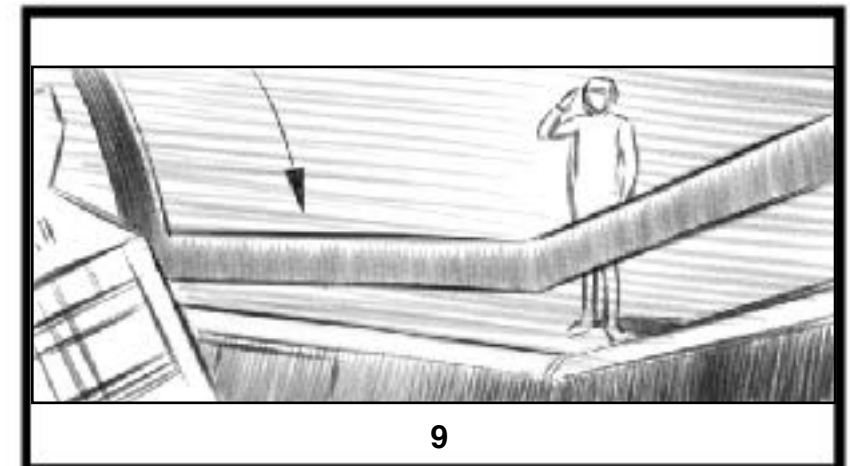

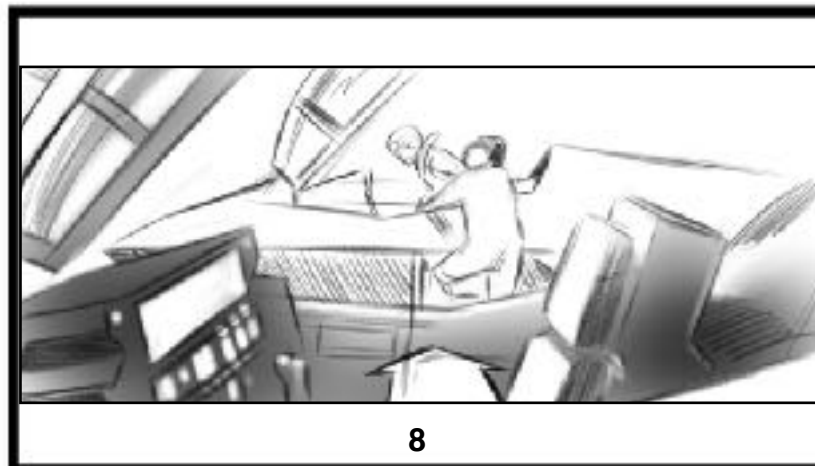

COMMANDER: Here's what we got. Several aid workers have been taken hostage by a rebel group. You'll provide close-air support while a Spec Ops team goes in and gets them out. Good luck.

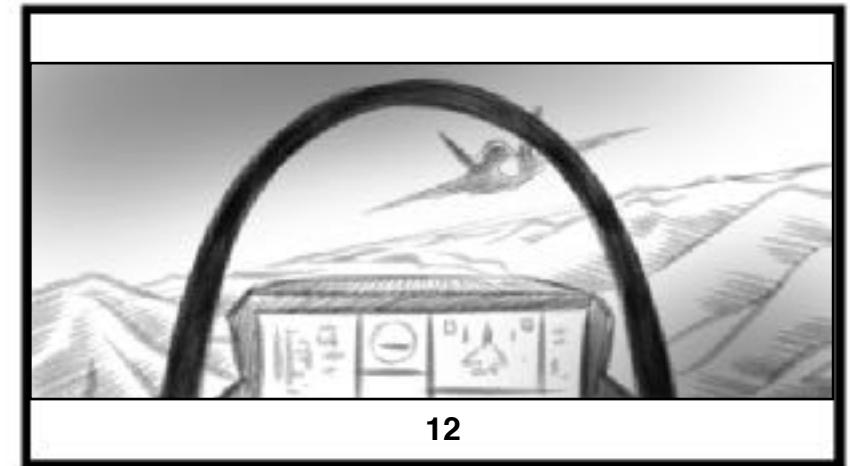

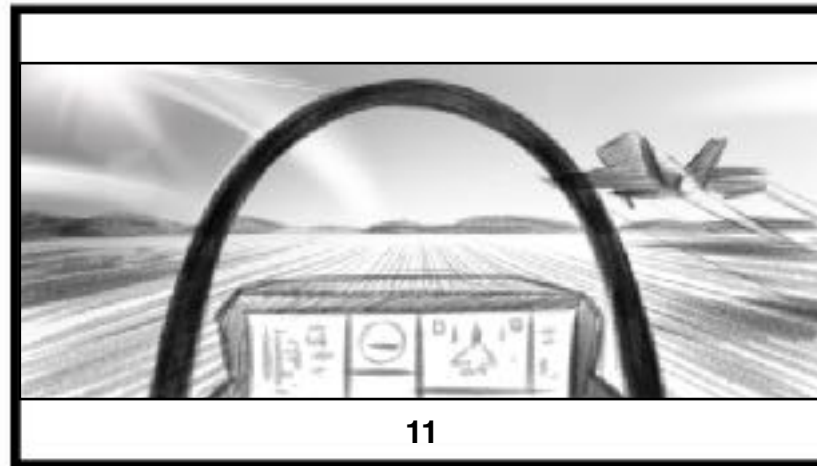

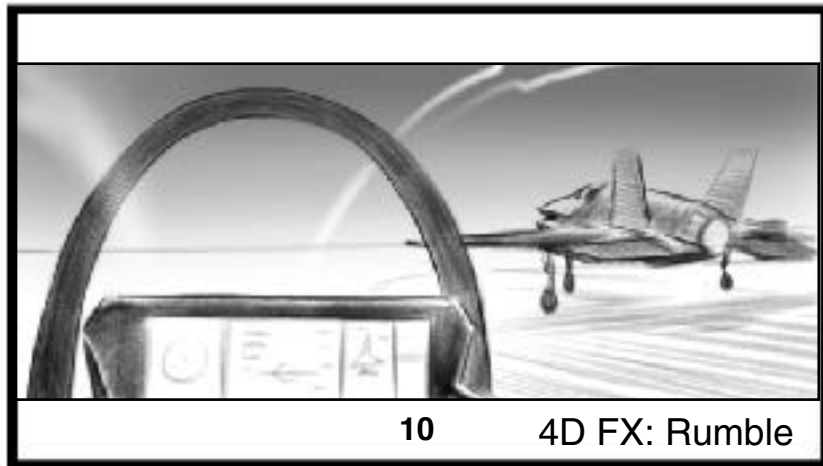

PILOT: Any issues I should know about?

CREW CHIEF: All good. It's still got that new-plane smell.

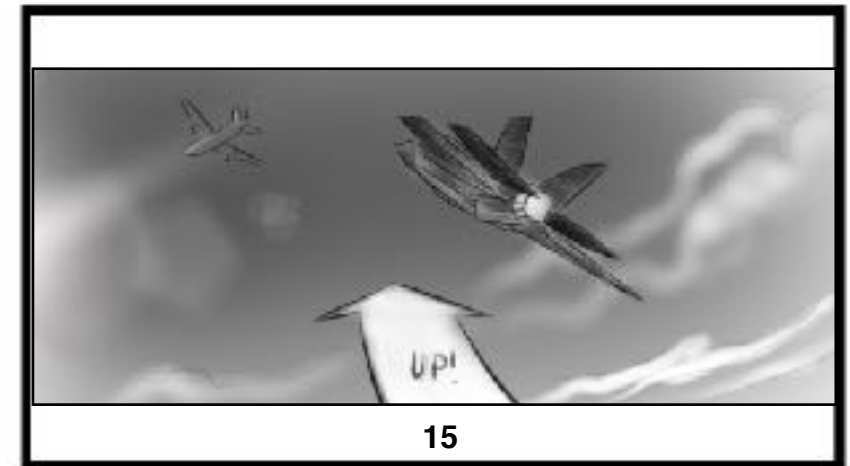

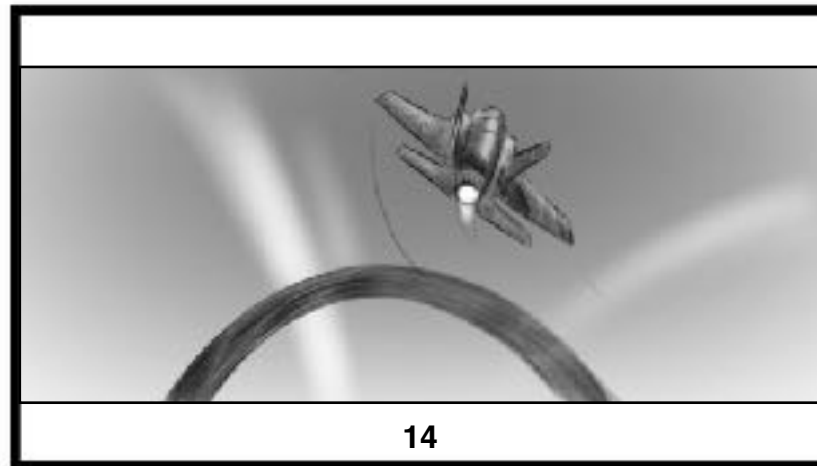

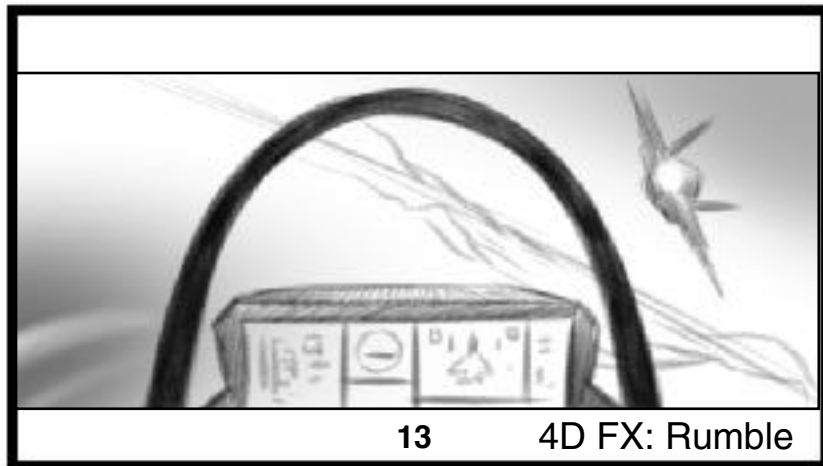

Then, with a final salute...

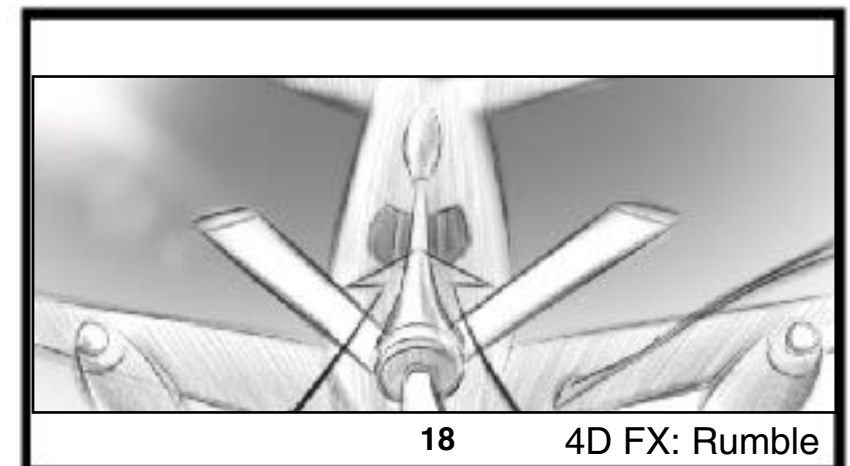

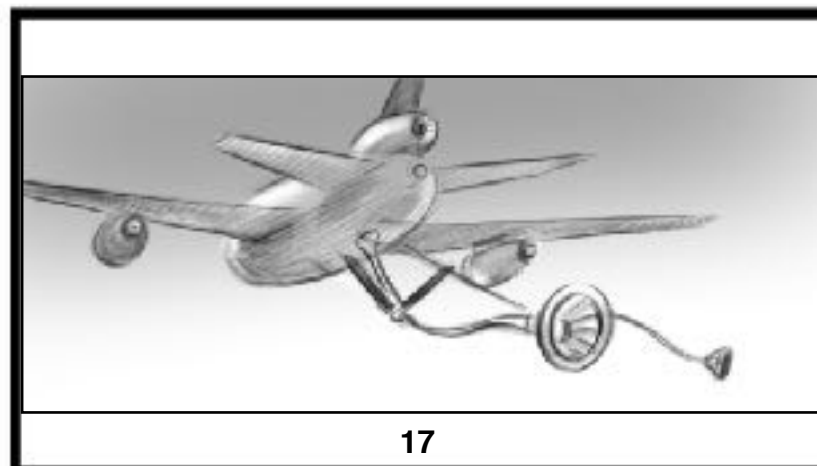

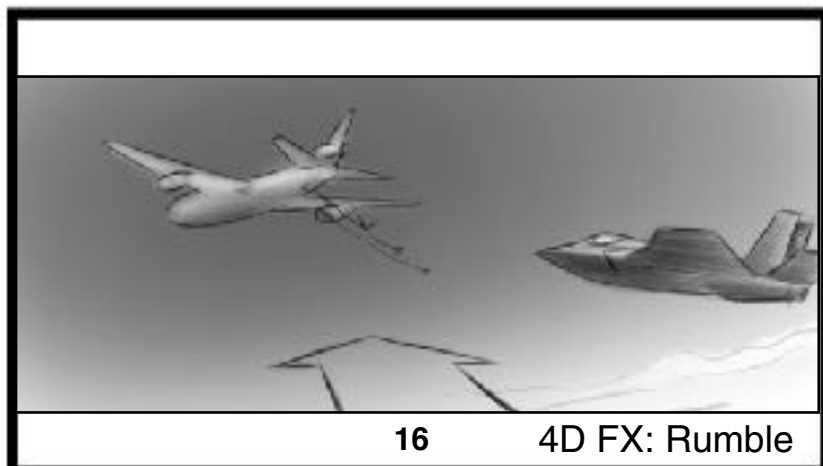

... we BLAST down THE RUNWAY—alongside our wingman/woman in a second F35—taking off into the sky...

WINGWOMAN: See if you can keep up!

COMMANDER: Hunter One-Niner, I have activated Space and Cyber Comms for support and a recon plane is in route with intel on the location of the hostages.

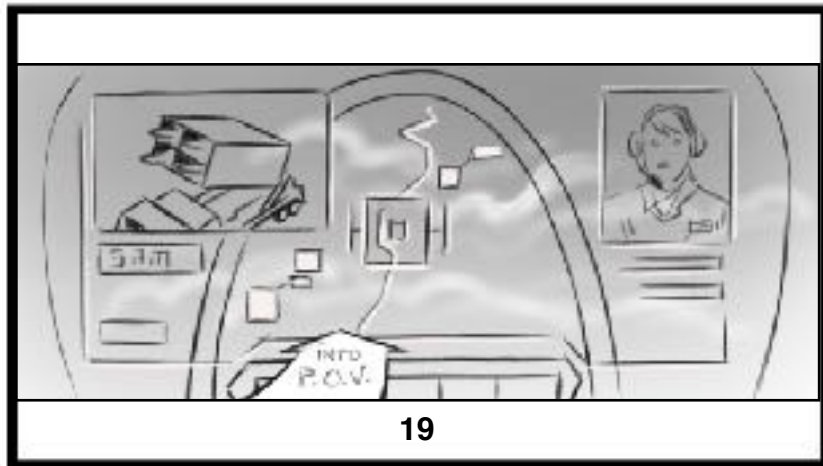

PILOT: Roger that

PILOT: This is Hunter One-Nine. Request to rejoin.

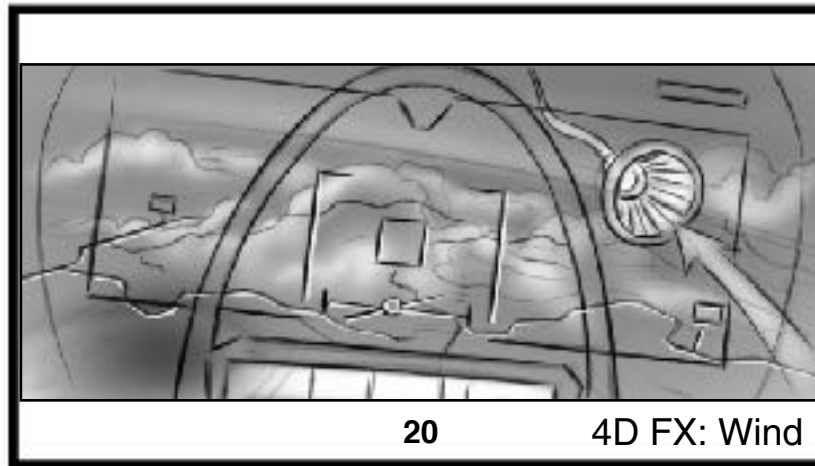

TANKER: You are cleared for contact, Hunter One-Nine.
